INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND STRATEGY

Liquidity and income in line with current market rates to the extent consistent with the preservation of capital. Investments limited to types of money market instruments, provided they are denominated in US dollars and have a remaining maturity of 397 days or less. Will be managed in a way to maintain an overall weighted average maturity not to exceed 60 days and a weighted average life of 120 days or less. Will only invest in either securities which have been rated (or whose issuers have been rated) in the highest short-term rating category by a US nationally recognized statistical rating organization or in unrated securities that have been determined by the investment manager or sub-advisor to be of comparable quality.

INVESTMENT MANAGER'S REPORT

February seems like years ago. As December and January data flowed in early in the month with positive reports on manufacturing, housing, employment and retail sales, the Federal Reserve looked pretty smart saying it would refrain from policy moves unless there were "material" changes to the economy.

Well, the coronavirus now qualifies as one. When the outbreak reached Europe and the U.S. as the month ended, it hit close to home. You don't have to have your eyes glued to a screen to know this outbreak will be with us for a while and that it will have some economic impact. But will it be material and, in turn, how should the Fed react?

Investors seemingly have made up their minds that the virus' effect will be significant and expect a rate cut at March's policy meeting, if not earlier. While a cut is likely forthcoming, the markets seem to want the Fed to fear the future as much as they do. Instead, policymakers must make clear they make their own decisions-that they indeed operate independently.

To that point, Fed Vice Chair Richard Clarida acknowledged the virus likely would disrupt the global economy but it was too soon to speculate about how much and Chair Jerome Powell followed said policymakers stood at the ready to, "act as appropriate to support the economy." The Fed likely is viewing the virus like a natural disaster: it wants to get ahead of it, but not make things worse.

Concern over the coronavirus drove the Treasury yield curve down as February ended, with 1-month finishing at 1.48%, 3-month at 1.30% and 6-month at 1.16%. The London interbank offered rate (Libor) curve also fell, ending February with 1-month at 1.52%, 3-month at 1.46% and 6-month at 1.40%.

ABOUT FEDERATED HERMES

A financial industry pioneer since 1955, Federated Hermes is one of the largest US investment managers. Known for our stability, diligence and diverse product line, Federated Hermes takes the long view, believing that doing business the right way over time will present opportunity for future growth. We apply the same approach to managing our international undertakings, which began in 1984 with the launch of one of the first international equity funds. Since then Federated Hermes has established a host of international funds and offices, including Federated International Management Limited ("FIML") in Dublin to manage Irish domiciled UCITS, Federated Asset Management GmbH in Frankfurt to service German-speaking countries, Federated Investors (UK) LLP, to manage UK-domiciled UCITS, as well as Federated Investors Canada ULC, to manage a Canadian fund, and the Federated Short-Term Daily U.S. Dollar Fund, Ltd., based in the Cayman Islands. Highly experienced investment professionals direct our operations, and we continually look to increase our robust global footprint through organic growth and strategic acquisitions.
