INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND STRATEGY

Liquidity and income in line with current market rates to the extent consistent with the preservation of capital. Investments limited to types of money market instruments, provided they are denominated in US dollars and have a remaining maturity of 397 days or less. Will be managed in a way to maintain an overall weighted average maturity not to exceed 60 days and a weighted average life of 120 days or less. Will only invest in either securities which have been rated (or whose issuers have been rated) in the highest short-term rating category by a US nationally recognized statistical rating organization or in unrated securities that have been determined by the investment manager or sub-advisor to be of comparable quality.

INVESTMENT MANAGER'S REPORT

As you learn in Economics 101, financial markets tend to act irrationally. Lately, you can make a case investors at the short end of the yield curve are not using common sense. In May the yield curve flattened, briefly twisted (3-month and 1-year Treasury yields dipping below 1-month) and then flattened again, but with the 1-year lower.

Perhaps irrational is too strong a word, but recent investor behavior is certainly overdone. The flattener is simply not justified by the domestic economic data that, while moderating, is still strong. We are among the many who think the U.S. is not likely headed to a recession anytime soon. Even the many geopolitical issues circling, such as trade conflicts, central bank easing and Brexit, hardly justify this overreaction. The issue seems to be a case of investing via group think.

But some investors may be overthinking. One of the reasons for the recent flattening is a misread, in our view, of a technical maneuver by the Fed that investors shouldn't be tracking anyway: interest on excessive reserves (IOER). The story goes like this: by cutting the interest the Fed pays banks on the money they keep in their Fed accounts, policymakers have surreptitiously lowered rates. People seem to have forgotten that the Fed has lowered IOER twice within the last six months without any market consternation. The only difference is that they were raising the fed funds target rate at the time. It isn't easing.

The good news for cash managers is that liquidity products remain attractive in this environment-especially prime portfolios that use the London interbank offered rate (Libor) that has not inverted.

One-, 3- and 6-month Treasuries all ended May at 2.30%. London interbank offered rates (Libor) finished the month at 2.43%, 2.50% and 2.52%, respectively.

ABOUT FEDERATED

A financial industry pioneer since 1955, Federated is one of the largest US investment managers. Known for our stability, diligence and diverse product line, Federated takes the long view, believing that doing business the right way over time will present opportunity for future growth. We apply the same approach to managing our international undertakings, which began in 1984 with the launch of one of the first international equity funds. Since then the Pittsburgh-based firm has established a host of international funds and offices, including Federated International Management Limited ("FIML") in Dublin to manage Irish domiciled UCITS, Federated Asset Management GmbH in Frankfurt to service German-speaking countries, Federated Investors (UK) LLP, to manage UK-domiciled UCITS, as well as Federated Investors Canada ULC, to manage a Canadian fund, and the Federated Short-Term Daily U.S. Dollar Fund, Ltd., based in the Cayman Islands. Highly experienced investment professionals direct our operations, and we continually look to increase our robust global footprint through organic growth and strategic acquisitions.
