Investment objective and strategy

Liquidity and income in line with current market rates to the extent consistent with the preservation of capital. Investments limited to types of money market instruments, provided they are denominated in US dollars and have a remaining maturity of 397 days or less. Will be managed in a way to maintain an overall weighted average maturity not to exceed 60 days and a weighted average life of 120 days or less. Will only invest in either securities which have been rated (or whose issuers have been rated) in the highest short-term rating category by a US nationally recognized statistical rating organization or in unrated securities that have been determined by the investment manager or sub-advisor to be of comparable quality.

Investment manager's report

The loss of lives and livelihoods due to Covid-19 was devastating and will continue into 2021. But there are positive developments and reasons for at least cautious optimism. The obvious one is the arrival of vaccines. Less clear is the performance of the economy, but there's optimism here, too. The U.S. entered 2020 in reasonable shape, with interest rates and inflation at around 2% and gross domestic product (GDP) growth in the 3-4% range. Headwinds, such as trade wars and Brexit, have passed.

It will take time for the U.S. to recover from the coronavirus-induced damage. But the economy is on its feet now, and with vaccines it should start taking strides. Pent-up consumer demand likely will play a major role. As people feel more confident about their finances or return to work if they were laid off, economic activity should arise. Consumers can only buy so much from Amazon. They will return to local stores, take trips, enjoy live entertainment and buy big-ticket items. And there's little indication that well-performing sectors, such as housing, will roll over. Even the Federal Reserve's outlook has gotten rosier. Projections from its December meeting are for GDP to decline 2.4% in 2020 but grow 4.2% in 2021, comparing favorably to its forecasts of 3.7% and 4%, respectively, in September. The Fed's projection for the labor market is similarly positive. Policy-makers now envision an unemployment rate of 6.7% in 2020 versus their September call of 7.6%. Both changes came with the full knowledge of the resurgence of the virus.

Treasury yields ended the month with 1-month at 0.05%, 3-month at 0.08%, 6-month at 0.09%, and 12-month at 0.11%. The London interbank offered rate (Libor) ended the month with 1-month at 0.14%, 3-month at 0.24%, 6-month at 0.26% and 12-month at 0.34%.
