Highlights

- Global equity markets sold off significantly as the global economic slowdown persisted
- Value stocks outperformed growth stocks during the quarter
- Sector weighting was the primary factor for the relative outperformance
- The Health Care sector positively contributed to the fund's performance on a relative basis

Looking back

During the second quarter of 2022, the U.S. economy and most significant westernized economies saw inflation become the primary headwind to economic growth. Inflationary pressures accelerated due to historic monetary easing enabling record fiscal spending as well as Eastern European conflicts causing supply disruptions. This persistent inflationary pressure has caused most global central banks to pursue aggressive monetary tightening policies in 2022. Both inflationary pressure and tightening monetary policies are causing slower economic growth, which led to equity markets selling off during the quarter. The U.S. markets fell into bear market territory for the year in the second quarter. The major U.S. equity indexes that sold off the most during the quarter were the growth- and technology-oriented Nasdaq index, which returned -22.27%, followed by small-cap stocks, represented by the Russell 2000 Index with a return of -17.21%, followed by mid-cap stocks, represented by the Russell Midcap Index, which returned -16.85%, followed by large-cap stocks, represented by the Russell 1000 Index, returning -16.68%, and the S&P 500 Index, which returned -16.11% in the quarter. Mid-cap value stocks continued to outperform mid-cap growth stocks.

During the second quarter, the portfolio team added new equity positions of the following: Medical Properties Trust, Nextera Energy, Philip Morris International, Apollo Global Management, and Physicians Realty Trust.

Also during the quarter, the portfolio subtracted or reduced the following equity positions in pursuit of better opportunities: Trane Technologies, Turning Point Therapeutics, GXO Logistics Inc, StepStone Group (exited), and Catalent Inc.

The fund participated in zero initial public offerings ("IPOs") in the quarter as the IPO market remained very quiet during the quarter after a record year in 2021.

The fund participated in 3 secondary offerings during the quarter: Scynexis, Inc., Rezolute Inc., and Zentalis Pharmaceuticals LLC.

Performance

Federated Hermes Kaufmann Fund Institutional Shares returned -18.80% at NAV for the three months ended June 30, 2022. That compares with its benchmark, the Russell Midcap Growth Index, which returned -21.07% during the same period.

How we are positioned

As the U.S. economy enters the second half of 2022, many headwinds continue to grow stronger: global monetary tightening, persistent inflation, geopolitical uncertainty, supply chain shortages. These, amongst others, are likely to persist throughout the year which could continue to cause market uncertainty. One notable indicator of investor caution is that there was very little IPO activity in the second quarter, for the second quarter in a row. After a record-breaking year in 2021, the 2022 U.S. IPO issuance remains quiet with 21 IPOs priced in 1H2022 only raising $2 billion, according to Renaissance Capital. Despite the macro uncertainties the Kaufmann team continues to be focused on finding and investing in companies that we require require little dependence on the economy, good or bad, to generate significant sales and earnings growth.

This quarter, the fund had approximately 65% of the portfolio invested in four sectors: Information Technology, Health Care, Consumer and Financials. The sector weightings of the portfolio are a byproduct of our bottom-up stock selection strategy with a team of sector-specialist portfolio managers. These sectors have historically provided good opportunities for bottom-up growth investors. We seek to find companies that have company-specific catalysts for growth, rather than develop macro themes to construct sector weightings. The strategy's consistent growth bias has allowed the portfolio to produce the following statistics over the last 12 months ending June 30: average sales growth of 35%, operating margins of 24% and median earnings growth of 12%. The Russell Midcap Growth Index's results over the same period were average sales growth of 30%, median operating margins of 20% and median earnings growth of 6%.

A word about risk

Mutual funds are subject to risks and fluctuate in value.

Small company stocks may be less liquid and subject to greater price volatility than large capitalization stocks.

International investing involves special risks, including currency risk, increased volatility, political risks and differences in auditing and other financial standards.

Investing in IPOs involves special risks such as limited liquidity and increased volatility.

Definitions

Alpha shows how much or how little return is generated, given the risk a portfolio takes. A portfolio with an alpha greater than 0 has earned more than expected given its beta—meaning the portfolio has generated excess return without increasing risk. A portfolio with a negative alpha is producing a lower return than would be expected given its risk.

Beta measures a portfolio's volatility relative to the market. A beta greater than 1.00 suggests the portfolio has historically been more volatile than the market as measured by the fund's benchmark. A beta less than 1.00 suggests the portfolio has historically had less volatility relative to the market.

Correlation is the degree to which one variable (here, the fund's returns) fluctuates relative to another (the returns of the fund's benchmark). Correlation ranges from 1.00, when two variables move identically in the same direction, to -1.00, when two variables move identically in the opposite direction.

R-squared indicates what percentage of a portfolio's movement in performance is explained by movement in performance of the market. R-squared ranges from 0 to 100, and a score of 100 suggests that all movements of a portfolio's performance are completely explained by movements in the market as measured by the fund's benchmark.

Standard deviation is a historical measure of the variability of returns relative to the average annual return. A higher number indicates higher overall volatility.

Weighted median P/E (LTM—latest 12 months) is a ratio comparing share price to earnings per share using data from the previous 12 months.

Weighted median P/E (NTM—next 12 months) is a ratio comparing share price to earnings-per-share using estimated data for the next 12 months.

Weighted median market cap is the calculation representing the median market capitalization of the stocks in the portfolio, weighted by the amount of each stock.

Russell 1000® Index measures the performance of the large-cap segment of the U.S. equity universe. It is a subset of the Russell 3000® Index and includes approximately 1000 of the largest securities based on a combination of their market cap and current index membership. The Russell 1000® represents approximately 92% of the U.S. market. The Russell 1000® Index is constructed to provide a comprehensive and unbiased barometer for the large-cap segment and is completely reconstituted annually to ensure new and growing equities are reflected.

Russell 2000® Index measures the performance of the small-cap segment of the U.S. equity universe. The Russell 2000 is a subset of the Russell 3000® Index representing approximately 10% of the total market capitalization of that index. It includes approximately 2000 of the smallest securities based on a combination of their market cap and current index membership. The Russell 2000® Index is constructed to provide a comprehensive and unbiased small-cap barometer and is completely reconstituted annually to ensure larger stocks do not distort the performance and characteristics of the true small-cap opportunity set.

Russell Midcap® Growth Index measures the performance of the mid-cap growth segment of the U.S. equity universe. It includes those Russell Midcap® Index companies with higher price-to-book ratios and higher forecasted growth values. It is constructed to provide a comprehensive and unbiased barometer of the mid-cap growth market. The index is completely reconstituted annually to ensure larger stocks do not distort the performance and characteristics of the true mid-cap growth market.

Russell Midcap® Index measures the performance of the mid-cap segment of the U.S. equity universe. The Russell Midcap® Index is a subset of the Russell 1000® Index. It includes approximately 800 of the smallest securities based on a combination of their market cap and current index membership. The Russell Midcap® Index represents approximately 27% of the total market capitalization of the Russell 1000 companies.

S&P 500 Index is an unmanaged capitalization-weighted index of 500 stocks designated to measure performance of the broad domestic economy through changes in the aggregate market value of 500 stocks representing all major industries.

Indexes are unmanaged and cannot be invested in directly.
